So Long, Farewell, Auf Wiedersehen:
*Exploring Termination in Play Therapy

Elizabeth Konrath, LPC, RPT-S and Amanda Trujillo, LMFT, AAMFT-Approved Supervisor:

Elizabeth and Amanda have both devoted their careers to helping children, adolescents, and families heal from anxiety, depression, adjustment difficulties, and loss, as well as, supervising and guiding other therapists.

Elizabeth has extensive training in trauma and is a certified Theraplay® therapist. The majority of Elizabeth's training is in play therapy, expressive therapies, and trauma treatment. More specifically, she uses sand tray, art therapy techniques, mindfulness techniques, cognitive-behavioral therapy, equine therapy, and family play therapy.

Amanda currently holds professional certifications in Expressive Arts Therapy, Traumatic Stress Management and Psychological First Aid and is close to obtaining her RPT-S. Amanda also brings her extensive training in play therapy, trauma work (i.e. TF-CBT), attachment based theories (i.e. EFT and EFFT), and family systems to both her clinical work and her supervision.

Workshop Description:

So Long, Farewell, Auf Wiedersehen:

Exploring Termination in Play Therapy

As therapists, we so often focus our efforts on what happens in the beginning and middle parts of therapy, but what about the end? It is crucial to terminate therapy in a meaningful and deliberate manner, particularly when working with children. This workshop will explore ways that we can approach termination in a variety of circumstances—from the most ideal “graduation” for clients who have met all their treatment goals, to the more frustrating and abrupt end of therapy due to issues outside of our control. This workshop will examine the unique challenges to consider when terminating with clients who have a history of trauma. We will also equip participants with a number of play-based activities that they can use with children and families during the termination process.

Workshop Objectives:

1. Identify four different play based activities to address termination.
2. Determine ways to recognize when a client or family is ready for play therapy to end.
3. Explore solutions to common problems related to termination in play therapy.
4. Examine ways to deal with termination when it occurs but is not clinically indicated.
5. Recognize specific challenges of termination in relation to children with trauma.
6. Explore possible issues of countertransference for play therapists related to termination.
